—Cherokee Advocate: We learn that the death, reported a few days since, of Capt. John T. Smith, at his home at Coody's Bluff, this Nation, was probably caused by the use of bologna sausage, purchased by him, at Coffeyville, Kansas. The young man, it is said, who traveled with him from Coffeyville also ate of the sausage, and was seriously affected, but succeeded in throwing it up, and was thus relieved. Capt. Smith was an adopted (by inter-marriage) citizen of the Delaware Nation while the Tribe was in Kansas. When the Delaware were adopted by the Cherokee, he came with the first batch of immigrants, and located at Coody's Bluff. He was a cultured gentleman, a good citizen, and was highly esteemed by those who knew him.

ANOTHER DARK DEED IN THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

A Man Found Dead on the Cimarron River.
Mr. S. L. Tipton, who has a cattle ranch on the Cimarron river, about eighty-five miles south of this city, in the Indian Territory, was in the city last Tuesday and gave us the following particulars of another dark deed in the Indian Territory.
He said, "Last Sunday morning, in company with one of my cowboys I started out to hunt up some stray cattle, and after traveling some twenty miles up the river, it being about noon, we came to the conclusion to stop and eat our dinner, and were riding into the timber for that purpose when we discovered an old wagon in the bushes a short distance from the river bank, and thinking some one was camped there, we hitched our horses and went to the wagon, but were somewhat taken back when we discovered that the wagon had been covered with blood. It was evident that a foul murder had been committed, and we commenced to look around for further developments and soon found where a body had been dragged through the sand, and following the trail, about three hundred yards we discovered the body of a man with an old butcher knife buried to the hilt in his heart. The man had evidently been dead for eight or ten days, and his body was in a putrid condition. I remained with the dead man and sent my cowboy to a ranch, about eight miles distant, and in about three hours he returned with Mr. Haygood. After Mr. Haygood arrived we made a thorough investigation, and found three rounds on the man's head, which apparently had been made with a club or some blunt instrument, and the knife wound, which must have been inflicted after the man was stunned by the blows on the head, as the garfets were torn away and the knife placed directly between his ribs and driven through his heart. On the body we found a small two-bladed knife, ten cents in silver, and a letter which was evidently from his wife. It read as follows:
DEAR SISTER, ARK. Oct. 21, 1882.
I have come to you and you would pass through Arkansas City, Kansas, I thought I would write to you to let you know I am here, and I would not have another chance until you reached Texas. The children are all well, I am feeling much better, and will start for home next week, and remain until you send for me, which I hope will not be long. I have sold all our household goods and freed a pony and put the money in the bank with what you left me. I wish you had all your money here, as I am afraid that man you took with you will do you mischief. He knows you have money on your person. I shall feel uneasy until I hear from you. Don't fail to write as soon as you get to Texas. As soon as you find a location that suits you I will come. Fred says you must buy him another pony so he can learn to ride like the cowboys when he goes to Texas. I don't think of anything more this time. If you write on the road direct in care of father, as I will be at home before another letter could reach me. Good bye.
P. S.—Mary is 13 months old today and said papa."

After searching the body we went through the things in the wagon, and found three blankets, two pair of pants, an overcoat, a vest, an ax, some meal and flour, bacon, a few other articles. We found nothing, however, that would give us any idea who the man was, but from the reading of the letter I should judge he was murdered by his companion. His body was in such condition that we could not move it, so we dug a decent grave and wrapped the body in the blankets and buried it the best we could."

Mr. Tipton requested us to publish the above, and state that the letter and property belonging to the murdered man are in his possession. He would further request that all Arkansas and Missouri papers copy, and thus assist him in informing the wife of the sad fate of her husband.—Ark. City Democrat.

Another Little Girl Traveler.
Sedalia Bazo. Seated in the ladies waiting room at the depot this morning, was a very bright and well dressed little girl, wearing upon her hat a paper on which was written: "In Care of the Conductors."

To a Bazo reporter she said her name was Cora Cass; that she came from Vinita, I. T., and was on her way to Winchester, Mo., where her father is, and where she is going to school. She had her satchel of books with her, and when noticed by the reporter, was instantly studying one of those rules in grammar which forty Sedalia lawyers couldn't tell what it meant. But she was bent on finding out about it.

$5.00 Reward.
I will pay the above reward for the delivery to me of one large black and white spotted cow. Underdevelop in each ear. No brands. Short horns. About 6 years old, and probably has a young calf. Last seen near Wm. Beatty's place.
G. W. GREEN.

CITY ELECTION.

The election on last Monday was one of the most quiet elections ever held in this country, notwithstanding the hard work on either side, it being a close race. Good men were on both tickets. There were ninety votes cast and S. J. Thompson received a majority of 13 over G. W. Lucky for Mayor. The citizen's ticket carried the day by a small majority. The polls were closed at sunset and Mr. S. J. Thompson was declared elected for Mayor, and took the oath of office for the ensuing year. The following are the names of the honorable gentlemen elected for city councilmen: J. T. McSpadden, G. W. Green, M. Frazee, M. Daniels and A. F. Chamberlain.

The new council assembled on the evening of the election with new Mayor Thompson, chairman, and called the honorable body of our citizens and transacted the following business: Thos. McSpadden nominated G. W. Green as Secretary, but Mr. Green withdrew on the grounds that he had too much business on hand to attend to the office, declined in favor of Thos. McSpadden, who was elected unanimously. Arthur Chamberlain was nominated by Dr. M. Frazee, for Treasurer, and was elected by a large majority.

On motion of Thos. McSpadden, Frazee, Chamberlain and Green were appointed as a committee to see L. P. Isbell, as to his acting as marshal for the ensuing year.

G. W. Green suggested that the ex-Mayor and council meet with the new one at their next meeting to settle and turn over their accounts and books. Motion carried.

Dr. M. Frazee suggested that they quarantine against the small pox district and was heartily approved by the whole body.

As it was getting late Dr. Frazee moved that they adjourn, to meet again Wednesday night at Wm. Little's store. Motion carried.

The council met on Tuesday evening and transacted the following business: The first was to appoint L. P. Isbell marshal, and he is to assess and collect all taxes within the city limits.

The council ordered the marshal to guard against the people coming to town from the small pox districts, and should they come, put them out at once.

Council adjourned subject to the call of the Mayor.

FRANK CASS' CHRONICLES.
I. And it came to pass, that the wanderer, Frank H. Cass, did journey into the B. I. T. and did halt at the town of Vinita.
II. And when he did reach the city of roses, and did anoint his bashful countenance with the pure waters of the Land; and did fight on the waist bands of his tattered pants by the kindness of old time friends. Then he did go forth to relate unto the multitude, funny stories, about what he could do for them.
III. Then did the wanderer open his mouth and heap upon them words of comfort, and did say unto them, "Frank Cass has the cheapest store on earth."
IV. Draw near, I pray thee, that I may look upon thy person, stand by that you may catch on to my prices, before buying elsewhere.
V. Peace is there and will remain in thy possession, as long as you trade at the new store of F. H. Cass.
VI. Cast your eyes back, beloved reader, and see if you can catch a fleeting glimpse of one single instance wherein goods were sold so cheap as they are now being sold, at Cass'.
VII. F. H. Cass is a man who holdeth great pride in his profession and knoweth no defeat.

A Short Visit to Muskogee.

Editor CHIEFTAIN:—Permit me to give your readers a few items relative to a short visit to Muskogee, Creek Nation, I. T.
On the afternoon of Thanksgiving, November 30th, the writer boarded the south bound train at Vinita. Soon the cars were rolling across the beautiful prairies which were interspersed here and there with skiffs of timber. Thence on we sped across beautiful little streams (one not so little; the old Arkansas) and almost before we were aware the train landed at Muskogee.
At the house of S. S. Sanger, one of Muskogee's best men and merchants, we received the most welcome and pleasant hospitality. We were glad to learn that thanksgiving was observed at Muskogee as well as Vinita. The service was held at the Presbyterian church, Rev. T. F. Brewer presided the thanksgiving discourse. As soon as this was over the bell began to call the people to worship at the Methodist church, to engage in the regular weekly prayer meeting, which was well attended by devout worshippers. At the solicitation of the Pastor the writer tried to preach a short discourse. We trust the evening was spent profitably as well as pleasantly.

We were much pleased to hear a good report in reference to the CHIEFTAIN among the citizens of Muskogee. They seem to highly appreciate your excellent paper.

On Friday morning we visited Harrell International Institute. This institution is under the auspices of the M. E. church, south, Rev. T. F. Brewer, President. Miss Fitzpatrick, one of the principal teachers in the collegiate department, Mrs. Locke, Principal of Primary department, and Miss Boardman, Principal of Music department. The services of another teacher of Shelbyville, Tenn., has been secured and he will take his place in the collegiate department soon. The number of pupils matriculated up to date is 90, with an average attendance of 85. The number is expected to be increased during the present week to 100.

This is one of the best schools in the Territory. The teachers above named are of the best class that can be secured from the States. Miss Fitzpatrick is a very highly accomplished lady, by long experience has become very successful as an instructor, and gained an excellent reputation. She is a fine teacher of the French as well as the English languages. Also an instructor in drawing painting and all kinds of ornamental work; and in addition to the above she is one of the finest musicians in the West, having taken lessons in Paris, and other places of rare instruction. Several young ladies who have heard her perform are so delighted they are contemplating coming to school for the musical instructions alone.

Mrs. Locke, Principal of the Primary department, is a very excellent teacher, which is seen in the rapid advancement of the pupils and the discipline with which she controls them.

Miss Boardman, the Principal in the Music department, is a lady of very rare attainments in both vocal and instrumental music. She was the organist and leader of the choir in one of the best Methodist churches in St. Louis, for some time before being employed as a teacher in Harrell Institute. She has 18 students under her instruction at present and several more are expected soon. The school is conducted at present in the Methodist church, and suitable temporary buildings adjacent thereto.

Arrangements are being made for the erection of a $10,000 building, which is hoped will be ready by the opening of the next term, September next. This is the second year of this institution. Respectfully,
J. O. FRANKS.
